Paul Davis staff named as HAAG Certified Roof Inspectors

Greer, SC – February 11, 2011 – Dan Driscoll and Chris Boarts with Paul Davis Restoration and Remodeling of the Upstate have completed coursework and are now HAAG Certified Roof Inspectors. Driscoll, who is the owner of the company and Boarts, a project manager, attended the certification class from February 8 – 10 in Atlanta, GA.

According to Driscoll, being a Haag Certified Roof Inspector lends credibility to Paul Davis' roof inspection findings. "We believe the investment in continuing education for our staff is important to our customers. HAAG Engineering Company is a leader in roofing certification and sets the standard for some of the nation's top roofing inspectors," said Driscoll. "The certification will increase our value as restoration professionals and can be the reason we get called over another non-certified inspectors," he said.

Driscoll added, "Entrance to the school has stringent prerequisites and the certification exam is demanding. Plus, maintenance of the certification requires frequent continuing education."

Since 1989, the Paul Davis office has provided training for all employees and has expanded its network of professional technicians and services across the entire Upstate region of South Carolina. The company also opened a Paul Davis Emergency Services office in Cashiers and Highlands, NC. Paul Davis works on small to large jobs in restoration and remodeling, emergency response, water and fire damage restoration, contents restoration and mold removal for residential and commercial properties.
