Paul Davis Emergency Services deploys technicians to New Jersey for Hurricane Irene work

Newark, OH – October 13, 2011 - Paul Davis Emergency Services of Licking County recently deployed its resources of staff and highly-specialized equipment to New Jersey in order to provide emergency mitigation services to communities damaged by Hurricane Irene.

According to Mike Seibert, Paul Davis office owner, the company sent technicians and equipment to locations in northern New Jersey in late August. The local Paul Davis group joined additional emergency services teams from across the country where they helped property owners with water damage and disaster restoration, and mold abatement.

“When the opportunity to provide disaster assistance was presented to us, we were pleased to help,” said Seibert. “One of the benefits to providing our services in New Jersey was that we were able to bring Paul Davis’ expertise and technologies with us to assist property owners in need,” he said.

“While we spent a couple of weeks in flooded homes and in buildings with mold issues, we left each project satisfied that our customers’ lives were being put back together,” said Seibert. The Paul Davis office was fully staffed and operational for customers in Licking County during the company’s restoration and repair work in New Jersey.

The emergency services office specializes in rapid-response emergency mitigation services including board-ups, water and fire damage restoration, mold removal, and trauma cleanup. The company provides services 24 hours a day and guarantees to respond to emergencies within two hours. The company is backed with more than 45 years of experience and training from Paul Davis Emergency Services and Paul Davis Restoration. Local office owners are certified by the Institute of Inspection, Cleaning and Restoration (IICRC) in water and mold extraction, as well as fire cleanup.
