Paul Davis names project managers in Rockland, Sullivan and Ulster counties in NY and Pike County, PA

Middletown, NY – July 1, 2011 – Paul Davis Restoration has named project managers to oversee jobs in the company's service territories throughout the Hudson Valley area. Project managers include Matthew Decker in Rockland County; Brendan Power in Sullivan County, and Jason McCarthy in Ulster County. Additionally, Desmond Baker has been named as project manager in the company's newly expanded territory including Milford and Pike County, PA. The four project managers also serve customers in Orange County.

According to Bruce Decker, company owner, the project managers are responsible for estimating and overseeing work in residential and commercial restoration and remodeling, clean up and reconstruction of property damage from water, fire, smoke, vandalism, and mold insurance claim losses. Responsibilities also include overseeing the company wide emergency services division which provides property owners with 24 hour assistance.

“Matthew, Brendan, Jason and Desmond are highly-trained and licensed professionals who have completed coursework and certifications from the Paul Davis national training center and The Institute of Inspection, Cleaning and Restoration Certification,” said Decker. “The men deliver exceptional customer service and provide the latest technologies in emergency services, restoration and remodeling,” he said.

Since 2000, the local Paul Davis office has served customers in Rockland, Orange, Sullivan, and Ulster counties and recently added the new territory in Pike County. The company provides emergency services 24 hours a day in all service areas. The office is headquartered at 307 Bloomingburg Road in Middletown, NY.
